Engineer 1

Are you an experienced Software Engineer with a solid understanding of automation technologies, a passion for open source software and a hunger for metrics? If yes, then come join our Infrastructure Engineering team as we hack, develop and deploy tools that enable infrastructure automation, help other teams deploy CD/CI pipelines, use public IaaS and expose infrastructure and application metrics to everyone in the company.

In this role, you will:

- Write software and contribute to Open Source projects
- Primary be working with Ruby, but not exclusively
- Be focused on writing tools and API’s to help other development and operations teams within the Nordstrom technology group
- Represent Nordstrom in the technical community, which can include participating in conferences
- Demonstrate a passion and commitment toward advancing a culture obsessed with gathering and using data for everything
- Work with some of the best, most passionate people in the world
- Participate in a 24x7 on-call rotation

Qualifications:

- Understanding of Agile software development methodologies and practices, including agile development, continuous integration and continuous delivery
- Comfortable with both Windows and Linux OS platforms
- Experience with Chef or similar configuration management technologies
- Experience with both on premise and public cloud installations
- Experience with Git or other source control tools
- General awesomeness, positive attitude and passion trump all other requirements

Who you are:

- You are interested in helping people
- You embrace failure and use it as a tool for learning
- You are allergic to things that slow you down
- You thrive in an environment where each individual is focused on a common goal, where collaboration is favored over competition
- You are comfortable in a role that requires a mixture of consulting, engineering, and support work
