Undergraduate CD major sought for work on a teaching and outreach project in the Astronomy Department, under the supervision of Chris Impey, University Distinguished Professor. The work will involve web site development, so core skills would be HTML, Javascript, CSS, and ideally familiarity with HTML5 and XML. Other desirable skills: use of spreadsheets, parsing and analyzing text documents, capturing and converting video files, and general familiarity with the core technologies of the Internet. An interest in astronomy is helpful but not essential.
