

GAUZE, or GAWSE (from the French gaze), in commerce, a very thin, slight, transparent kind of stuff, woven sometimes of silk, and sometimes only of thread. The gauze-loom is like a common one, but with some appendages. There are figured gauzes, and some with flowers of gold and silver, which last are chiefly brought from China.